

Connecticut Girls
Collaborative Project

Advancing the agenda in gender equity for Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics

Mini-grant money available—learn how to apply

Speaker Keshia Ashe on the importance of role models and mentors

Workshops include: Designing Programs that Engage Girls in STEM; Techbridge Role Models Matter Training

Network with other professionals in the field who are passionate about STEM knowledge and practice

Hear tips and techniques to engage girls in meaningful discussions

Mentors Inspire; Role Models Matter

A Forum Sponsored by Girls RISE and the CT Girls Collaborative Project

April 28, 2014, 8:30 a.m.— 4:30 p.m. (3:30—4:30 explore the CSC galleries)

Connecticut Science Center

250 Columbus Boulevard
Hartford, CT 06103

Both formal and informal educators will value this unique opportunity to network with peers who support and create programs for girls in STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) subjects.

Workshop, breakfast and lunch are FREE; registration required by April 18, 2014*

Schedule

8:30—9:00	Breakfast
9:00	Welcome
9:15	Networking Activity—bring business cards
9:30	Keynote Speaker Keshia Ashe, CEO, Many Mentors
10:30	Workshops
12:00	Buffet Lunch and Resource Exchange
1:00	Panel discussion with mentors/mentees
2:00	Workshops
3:00	Evaluation and Dialogue
3:30—4:30	Gallery Exploration: The CT Science Center will remain open for interested participants to browse or interact with the exhibits.

 TO REGISTER: <http://www.ngcproject.org/mentors-inspire-role-models-matter>

The Connecticut Science Center is a regional Hub for the Girls RISE Museum Network, and is committed to the work of enhancing the ability of informal science educators to engage minority girls in grades 6-12 in programming that will encourage them to pursue careers in Science, Technology, Engineering and Math. We are pleased to present this workshop in collaboration with the CT Girls Collaborative, a regional collaborative in the NSF-funded National Girls Collaborative Project.

Any questions may be addressed to Elyn Savard at Girl Scouts of Connecticut, esavard@gsofct.org; 203.334.3145 ext 3018.

