Jean Fahy to Everyone : Hello. I'm from Oakland, California

Sherry Hsi to Everyone : Hello! Joining from Berkeley, CA.

Linda Calhoun to Everyone : Hi, Linda Calhoun. Founder and CEO Career Girls. We are based in San Francisco.

Carol Tang to Everyone : So thrilled to see so many friends!

Uchenna Ezibe to Everyone : Hi everyone! Joining from Fort Washington, MD

Karen Peterson (she, her, hers) to Everyone : Hello everyone! Karen Peterson here - I'm looking forward to hearing from our fabulous speakers and "seeing" all of you today!

George Khalaf to Everyone : Hi, George Khalaf, Overdeck Family Foundation

Dale McCreedy to Everyone : HI - Dale from Discovery Center at Murfree Spring in TN and lead for TN Girls Collaborative.

Laura Herszenhorn (she/her) to Everyone : Hi there, I'm joining from the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco. Nice to see so many friendly faces, familiar and new.

Lisa Regalla to Everyone : Hi- I'm Lisa from Regallium Consulting. So excited to hear from this panel!

Dale McCreedy to Everyone : Hi Ananya - great to see you. Loved your participation on the girls & STEM webinar during last year's TN STEAM Festival!

Ananya to Everyone : Hi Dale! It's great to see you too!

Karen Peterson (she, her, hers) to Everyone : Thanks for kicking us off SO well Ananya!

DFS - Audrey Auyang to Everyone : Hello! Audrey Auyang from Dreams for Schools in Orange County, CA

Linda Calhoun to Everyone : For more about Career Girls

Laahiri Chalasani to Everyone : Hi, I'm Laahiri from the National Girls Collaborative Project. I'm physically located in Fairfax, VA. Dr Johnson is amazing!

Cherise Charleswell to Everyone : Hello. I'm looking forward to hearing from the speakers. I'm the Executive Director of Boundless Brilliance a STEM focused program for elementary school students based in Los Angeles; with new chapters on boarding in Arizona, Santa Barbara, and San Diego.

Kelly Reina (she/her) to Everyone : Hello, All! Thanks for joining us today. I'm Kelly Reina and with the both the Children's Creativity Museum and the National Girls Collaborative Project. I'm based in San Francisco

Hiba Rteil to Everyone : Hello everyone, I'm Hiba from Playing at Learning located in San Jose, California.

Materia, Inc. to Everyone : Nice to e-meet you all - I am Chris Murphy, CEO of a Caltech materials technology spinoff called Materia. As father of 3 STEM daughters and believer in need and value to improve attractiveness for under-represented groups to STEM - and want to give back and help.

Laura Herszenhorn (she/her) to Everyone : Thanks for address the STEM learning loss, Janet. It's so important to help youth get re-engaged and reignited in learning after such a challenging and draining year. I think we'll want to be careful that educators don't focus so much on "catching up" and instead prioritize wellness and getting youth excited about learning again.

Carol Tang to Everyone : I love the no fence! But also having the kids PLAY the game ON THE FIELD! :-)

Carol Tang to Everyone : AISL=Advancing Informal Science Learning program

Cherise Charleswell to Everyone : I often use: historically excluded, intentionally excluded or under-funded; rather than under-served. We should be asking why these communities were underserved

Julie Johnson to Everyone : Resource about the language used to refer to groups/populations with which we work. This was shared with a PI of a project I manage. - <https://cacm.acm.org/blogs/blog-cacm/245710-underrepresented-minority-considered-harmful-racist-language/fulltext>

Kelly Reina (she/her) to Everyone : Great insights from all of our speakers! Thank you!
Carol Tang to Everyone : What do we ALL think are the important outcomes we should focus ?

Sherry Hsi to Everyone : I am curious about how to supporting social and technological infrastructure beyond just program resources. As an example the Girls in Engineering program offer Wi-Fi access points/hardware to families so their campers can participate in camp. This is like removing the fence in Julie's baseball example.

Sherry Hsi to Everyone : The Girls STEM program: <http://girlsengineering.berkeley.edu/>
Gemma Lenowitz to Everyone : https://www.cta.org/wp-content/uploads/2021/03/Research-Brief_-Rebuild-and-Reimagine-FINAL.pdf - You all have a great partner in CA!

Adamaka Ajaelo to Everyone : Hello Everyone, what are resources available for conducting program impact analysis from a data driven perspective? Our organization is applying to NSF grant and we are looking for resources regarding measurement design and assessment framework.

Julie Johnson to Everyone : I realize my mic may have been off, so I don't know if you heard my last piece about Opportunity Youth (<https://youth.gov/youth-topics/opportunity-youth>)

Linda Calhoun to Everyone : World Possible's RACHEL portable hotspot
<https://worldpossible.org/>

Carol Tang to Everyone : Yes, we heard the Opportunity Youth discussion. Thanks for sharing the link.

Materia, Inc. to Everyone : Unfortunately, I need to sign off now. The COVID driven race to understand the virus and find/Implement a fix also gives us a Silver Lining - real time example of compelling reasons we need to attract more kids to STEM. So many real time example of diverse heroes lately. Also, highlights global community need for technology driven fixes - much like climate change.

Linda Calhoun to Everyone : <https://learningequality.org/kolibri/> Learning Equality has an interesting platform for access to resource Sherry Hsi to Everyone : Thanks for the links and comments. So helpful.

Julie Johnson to Everyone : A new program announcement - Racial Equity Program
