Amanda Sullivan: If you have questions for our speakers, please put them in the chat anytime! We'll collect them and ask our speakers your questions after they have both presented.

Amanda Sullivan: <https://mitmedialab.github.io/student-voices-in-ai/>

Amanda Sullivan: Here is a past webinar from NGCP that focused on issues of equity in AI fields: <https://ngcproject.org/resources/exploring-issues-equity-artificial-intelligence>

Rebecca Haynes: @Karen Lang, thank you for these insights ,how is technovation working with local colleges or universities, to ensure those graduating and educators have durable skills in this ever evolving world of AI?

Amanda Sullivan: Thank you for asking! We'll ask this question during the Q&A.

Amanda Sullivan: Here is a resource from the Afterschool Alliance related to AI in afterschool settings. It includes an editorial piece from the CEO of Technovation:

Mak: Will this recording/PowerPoint be shared out afterwards?

Kata Lucas (she/her): Yes! Both will be shared

Anita Krishnamurthi: The Alliance's CYESS initiative has also been focusing on supporting afterschool programs to make connections between STEM & Society and to really develop the civic skills being discussed. See <https://cyess.org/> and <https://cyess.org/projects/youth-civic-engagement-toolkit/>

Amanda Sullivan: We will have time soon to talk with Karen and Daniella. Please share your questions in the chat!

Luella (Technovation): Luella@technovation.org

Janice's iPhone: What AI agents do you use with the girls and do you instruct the process of creating meaningful prompts? Thank you

Amanda Sullivan: We'll ask that next!

Jennifer Schmidt: Do you have any programs that you offer for Grade School girls? 3-6th grade?

Amanda Sullivan: I'll ask for clarification on that next!

Daniella DiPaola: <https://dayofai.org/>

Luella (Technovation): If you sign up for our AI in Action educator guide, you'll be placed in on our newsletter listserv.

Amanda Sullivan: Got it, thank you!

Beth Callaghan: @Amanda Sullivan thank you so much for this webinar. Will we automatically get the recording and resources and contacts from the chat or do we have to request those?

Kata Lucas (she/her): Yes! You will get the recording and chat

Amanda Sullivan: And the webinar will also be available on our website as a resource you can share with others in the next week or so

Lynn Reichert: Amazing resources!!!

As of Feb 2025: Thanks Amanda, was just able to enter- grrr lol busy day

Amanda Sullivan: That's ok! You can watch the full recording, thank you for coming in :-)

Beth Callaghan: Thank you all! This was really great!

Janice's iPhone: Thanks Amanda!

Leah Silverberg: The Alliance's CYESS initiative also has a lot of resources for afterschool programs looking to make connections between STEM & Society and to really develop the civic skills being discussed. Not all AI focused but a great starting point for many programs. See <https://cyess.org/> and <https://cyess.org/projects/youth-civic-engagement-toolkit/>
